A FAMOUS SENTENCE.

Steele's "To Love Her Was a Liberal Education."

The remark which Steele made in reference, as is generally supposed, to Lady Elizabeth Hastings has often been quoted and almost as often quoted incorrectly. Steele wrote, "Though her men carries much more invitation than command, to behold her is an immediate check to loose behavior; to love her was a liberal education."

There are two curious misquotations of this bright and famous sentence, which Thackeray declared to be "the finest compliment to a woman that perhaps ever was offered." One is in the essay on Pope contained in James Russell Lowell's "My Study Windows." "Was it not in this age," says Mr. Lowell, "that loose Dick Steele paid to his wife the finest compliment ever paid to woman when he said 'that to know her was a liberal education'?" Here are two distinct errors committed by no careful a writer as Mr. Lowell. Yet he is not alone in this. Arthur Helps in his romance of "Red-mah" has this sentence: "Steele also did not ill describe, though briefly, the charm of being with a woman whom he greatly admired when he said 'that to be much with her was in itself a liberal education.'"

"We are also told that Leigh Hunt once in quoting the remark incorrectly ascribed it to Congreve. Here, then, are three distinct writers of high rank who have shown how in a moment of careless composition they were led astray by an inaccurate remembrance. They had no desire to misquote their author, and they gave the substance. But they grievously failed in the words themselves and one of them at least in their application.—Argonaut.

IN BOSTON MARKETS.

Not Much Change in Butter and Cheese Is Noted.

Boston, Oct. 13.—The week opens in the local market for butter, cheese and eggs without much change from last week's conditions. Strictly fancy fresh creamery butter continues in light supply and firm. The under grades also are well sold up, the high prices of the best stock creating a demand for the former. The general situation in butter is little changed. Production has been assisted lately by very favorable weather, but consumption also has been large, and the deficiency in the spring and summer make is a long way from being made up. The season for frosts is at hand, but it usually takes a good severe one to check the flow of milk, and there is hope for a fairly good make while the weather remains mild. But no matter how large the fall make is, it is likely that butter will be high this winter owing to the unusually small stocks of butter in cold storage. Cheese continues quiet, but prices are well maintained since local holdings are lighter than usual and prices in the country remain high. Fancy fresh eggs are scarce and firmly held.

Following quotations:
Butter—Fancy northern creamery tubs 32 1/2 @ 34c, boxes 35 @ 36c, prints 35 @ 36c, western tubs 32 @ 33c, dairy 20 @ 30c.
Cheese—New York full cream, fancy 16 1/2 @ 17c, Vermont 15 1/2 @ 16c, Wisconsin young America 17 1/2c, sage 17 1/2c.
Eggs—Fancy henery 37 @ 38c, choice eastern 34 @ 35c, fresh western 28 @ 30c.
